You can use any acrylic paint that you have on hand. Anything from the craft paints in the bottles, student grade paint on up to the professional grade paint. It really depends on where you are in your painting world. If you are just starting out, I would suggest using a student grade paint. There are many brands to choose from, but I like the Liquitex Basics. You can also use the craft paint that you can purchase in the little bottles, if you have those. I used those when I first started painting. As you become more experienced and a better painter, you can move up to the professional grade paints. I use the Liquitex Professional Heavy Body Acrylic Paint.

Below are links to products that you can use to paint with me. I thought that it might be helpful if you are a beginner painter. Amazon and Blick Art Supplies are affiliate links, but Michael's is not. Like I said, you can use any brand of paint that you want. I use acrylic paint during instruction of this painting video.
